The Hongkong Telegraph

HONGKONG, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1889.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Mr. Oscar Brandt was again in Court this morning. Particulars of his little case will be found reported in another column.

One of the beams in a godown at Praya East fell down shortly after midnight, and, dislodging the coping-stone, killed a cool-cool.

At the Sanitary Board meeting to-morrow the orders of the day will be—

1. By-laws to be made under Sub-section 13 of Section 13 of Ordinance 24 of 1887.

2. Correspondence regarding drainage of the Hill District.

3. Report by a Committee concerning the cultivation of fish ponds.

4. Report by a Committee considering tenders for the general surface scavenging of the city.

YESTERDAY'S LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

The following portion of the proceedings at the Council were omitted from last night's issue:—

THE INCREASE OF OFFICIAL SALARIES.

Mr. MacEwen continued.—The next point is not officially before us, that is, the increase of salaries to officials which the Commission recommended, and as I am entirely ignorant of what the recommendation was I would suggest the expediency of laying the report on the table, because I believe if the matter were publicly discussed it would benefit the scheme and assist the Secretary of State in arriving at a conclusion.

We know very well that the description of the matter is very apt to be pigeon-holed, more especially where money is concerned, and it may take many months to arrive at a conclusion. The taxpayers generally in this Colony are fully agreed that where a case of hardship exists it should be remedied. Undoubtedly rents are high. There is an old maxim that a man should not spend more than one-tenth of his income in rent, but I am quite sure that most people in this Colony live in houses at that ratio they would have not only very poor accommodation but would have difficulty in finding any at all. I heard a practical suggestion the other day that the Government should occupy a certain portion of land and build houses for all the officials, that is to say, there should be a Chief Justice's house, a Colonial Secretary's house, and so on; but, at any rate, whether that is feasible or not, your Excellency might perhaps consider the position of the lower branches of the Service, as I am given to understand that married men, in the Police Force particularly, are badly housed and suffer a great deal of hardship in this respect.

THE QUESTION OF TAXATION.

Now, sir, with reference to a reduction of taxation. Your Excellency I know had this under your consideration and would have approved it had it not been for the damage caused by a recent severe rain storm, which amounted to 200,000. I am given to understand you would have seen your way to reduce taxation from 13 per cent. the rate at which it at present stands, to the previous rate, 10 per cent. Your Excellency is aware this is a grievous burden to many, more especially the poorer classes, and it would be of interest to the public and this Council if your Excellency would state your views in reference to your future policy under this head.

A REMEDY FOR THE OVERCROWDING.

Another matter I wish to bring to the notice of the Government, and I may say it is more at the instigation of the Chinese, with a view to the relief of overcrowding in the centre of the town. I believe your Excellency has already had it under consideration, and I mention it now to ascertain your views. The subject of the removal of the licensed brothels, of which there are many, commonly termed among the Chinese, licensed houses, from the Central district. As a precedent I may say this has already been done at Singapore and I believe, at Penang. Undoubtedly they are dens of filth, and I think from a sanitary point of view their removal would be a great benefit to this Colony, and perhaps as Mr. Chadwick is in our midst he might be approached and requested to give his views on the subject.

THE SINGAPORE CABLE.

Another matter is the direct cable between this and Singapore, that I believe, has already had your Excellency's attention. It may be of some interest to this Council and the public to know that the Imperial Authorities are strongly in favour of that scheme, but, as usual, it is a matter of expediency. The Imperial Treasury has anything towards it, at any rate at present. This scheme on foot is to connect by cable Borneo, Singapore, and Hongkong. The Eastern Extension Telegraph Company ask a subsidy of £31,000 per annum for a certain number of years. This subsidy asked for appears to me to be monstrous. Of course I am only dealing with Hongkong's share, £18,000, to be divided between this and Singapore. I am aware that in any negotiations on this important subject your Excellency is placed in a delicate position but I am convinced that if you were to take it on your matter in the energetic and able manner you did, for instance, the removal of the licensed brothels, and the light on Gap Rock, not only would the subsidy be reduced, we should see direct telegraphic communication between this and Singapore at no very distant date. I have made very careful inquiries as to the cost of deep sea cables and I find it amounts to the moderate sum of £100 per mile. Now, taking the distance between this and Singapore, about 1,500 miles, you have a sum of £150,000, and all I can say is that, if that matter were properly brought before the public of this colony, it could be necessary to start the Hongkong and Singapore Telegraph Company, based on mutual principles, and I for one believe the concern would pay. I think it must be patent to every thinking man that we should not be entirely dependent for communication from Great Britain on cables through two passively hostile powers. Of course people say, "Oh there is no likelihood of it," still, it is a possibility, and considering the interests at stake, not only in this colony, but British interests in China and Japan, I think it is a matter that should be carefully considered, and I commend it to the consideration of your Excellency.

THE P. W. D.

With regard to public works, I may state that I am sure the Surveyor-General received at the hands of the community all sympathy on his first arrival in taking over office under extreme difficulties, and on the part of the public I would simply ask that if possible greater haste should be made in the progress of public works. We have been, as your Excellency is aware, so much accustomed to delay in the completion of public buildings that people very naturally get annoyed and dissatisfied. The Surveyor-General, as we know, one of the most important departments in this colony. Now, as an example, my hon. friend the Acting Colonial Secretary will recollect a discussion about four years ago on the subject of the Central Market, and a very heated discussion it was. I certainly hoped to have found the market completed by this time; the site is levelled, and I think that is all. I believe at present a Circus is there. With reference to the Gap Rock Light, if the hon. member could give the public any information as to the possible date of its completion it would, I know, be very satisfactory. Sir, looking at this, I think it is a mistake that the Government ever undertook the building of the light on that particular spot, because I fancy it will possibly prove a tougher job than they anticipated at the time, and if Sir Robert Hart's offer had been accepted, and if he would build the light if we would pay for it, we should have done better.

THE CROWN AGENTS.

The next point is with reference to the Crown Agents. This, as your Excellency is aware, has previously been brought to the notice of this Government, and it will probably also come up in Finance Committee. It would be of very great advantage to the trade of this colony if all the requirements for public works were met up to the public, and I believe most conscientious people that thousands of dollars would have been saved in connection with the "Titan" (Waterworks) and the fact that this plan had been adopted. But this is another matter that must be left entirely to your Excellency's consideration.

OUR COMMERCE.

Now, sir, lately there has been a commercial depression over this colony. These commercial storms visit all communities at times, and broadly speaking they do I think in the long run good, for they clear up the commercial atmosphere and root up all that is wrong. Already trade is showing signs of improvement, confidence is being restored, and capital is being returned to our midst, and I confidently believe that with a firm hand and progressive policy on the part of the Government, and above all a watchful eye over its legitimate trade, the prosperity of this colony will be as great, say, greater than it has been in the past.

Mr. Ryley.—My hon. friend on my right has referred to me in connection with the forts. I cannot exactly remember now, but my strong impression is that when the last vote was made it was distinctly understood that we were not to be called upon for any more. I have no doubt the Acting Colonial Secretary will remember the exact facts.

His Excellency—I will explain the matter directly. I have listened with great pleasure to the able speech of the hon. member and I only wish his example may prove contagious and that we may hear a little more from hon. members than we are in the habit of doing. I find, as an accused of occupying a large amount of your time in talking, but I am not conscious of doing more than is necessary, but I am forced to do it by the silence of others.

THE IMPERIAL AUDIT.

First, as to the audit, the hon. member is mistaken in supposing there is any opposition on my part to an Imperial audit. On the contrary I think it a thing absolutely necessary, if for no other reason, for the satisfaction of the Governor himself. It is an exceedingly necessary thing. I am not going to answer the points raised by the hon. member, because I am not going to argue against a proposition which an experienced Secretary of State says is a good one. The arguments have not convinced me because I believe an Imperial officer coming here would be entirely independent of the Governor and do all that is necessary on the spot and much quicker. At the same time, the Secretary of State having that proposition before him has overridden it and I have nothing more to say. If it has the effect I believe it will have, of being a mistake, I believe it will be found out before long. At all events the amount won't be much. If it succeeds at all in having the effect desired, in creating greater regularity and stopping abuses, it will be worth all it costs and a great deal more. I should be sorry if hon. members, even if they agree with me, should not pass this vote. I think we are bound to defer somewhat to the large experience of the Secretary of State of many colonies. Although the arguments have not convinced me, still one cannot help feeling that my inability to see things in the same light or to put in a favourable light what I do not approve of may be due to a want of sagacity on my part, rather than to any want of goodness in the proposition itself. Therefore I should be glad that in spite of my opinion an opportunity should be given of trying the experiment. But as to any objection on my part to an Imperial audit, on the contrary I think it most desirable. At all events, it would prevent a great many things being said that are sometimes said and which I need hardly say it is very undesirable should be said.

THE PORTS AND MILITARY CONTRIBUTIONS.

With regard to the forts, I think I am right in saying the amount put down is simply the balance of the vote already passed by the legislature. I believe this is simply the balance of the vote passed last year and which has not been expended. We are obliged to put it down because it has not been expended. You will see it is not a round sum.

MR. MACEWEN.—IT IS NOT TERMED A BALANCE.

His Excellency—I think I am right in saying it is the balance of a vote already passed by the Council and that has not been expended.

MR. RYLEY INTERJECTED A QUESTION AS TO WHETHER THE COUNCIL HAD A RIGHT WITHOUT LEGISLATION TO PASS ANY MORE FOR AUDIT THAN WAS DOWN IN THE CIVIL LIST.

His Excellency—If you will give notice of the question I will answer it. I cannot answer you now with regard to arrangements with regard to the Civil List. There were settled before my time. I am now dealing with the forts and I say I believe the amount put down is the balance of the vote already passed. In fact it was only on that understanding it passed me. It is not so I shall take blame to myself for not having drawn special attention to it. As to the financial view of the Colony, or as to the probability of our having a claim made upon us for an additional Imperial contribution, I think I mentioned at last meeting that since I wrote my report I have had official intimation that we are going to be called upon to pay an extra sum for an additional fort. It is to be sent here, and I don't know whether my report may assist, as the hon. member suggests, in strengthening the claim upon us for that sum or whether it may assist towards deviating it; all I know is that I have endeavoured to speak the truth. I have neither rose-coloured the situation nor the reverse, and for no purpose whatever could I feel myself justified in giving a different character to the position of the colony than it possesses. While mentioning the position of the colony I have mentioned also that we are paying more than any other colony. I can scarcely think that that will be a ground for asking more from us, but before that determination has been arrived at before that report could get home. And this demand is made on a specific ground. Hitherto we have had one regiment; now we are to have two. I presume the extra payment will not be asked for until the extra regiment comes. At any rate, I am informed officially some demand is going to be made upon us; more than that I cannot say.

THE BUREAU OF STATISTICS.

As to the statistics, I share the hon. member's regret that we have no statistics, and the more I think of it the more I find it difficult to understand the validity of the objections against it. However, as you know, after the collection of statistics had been recommended by the Chamber of Commerce, the pressure on the official members seemed so great that there seemed to be almost unanimity against it on their part in this Council. As I said then, I hope time may alter the hon. members' opinions. Every day I see ways in which the absence of statistics prejudice the Colony, not because we want to have our grandeur or ingenuitance shown, but because such statistics would draw attention to points that may be weak and enable them to be strengthened, and not only that, but for many other reasons which it is impossible to give at the moment, but which are the result of the absence of statistics. However, I may say, in my mind a scheme which may assist public opinion changes somewhat. The matter is not of that importance that it is desirable to force public opinion; I hope it may change of itself. But it occurred to me, we might possibly remedy the matter to a certain extent by a circular letter to the Governments of the various countries with which we trade asking them to return to us from their statistics the amount of their imports and exports from and to this Colony. I think that that way may tolerably well make up for the absence of the bureau of our own. Of course a great deal depends upon the extent to which other countries fall in with it, but this Colony constantly being asked to do things for other countries—we are constantly being asked by Germany, and by other countries, for papers, statistics, and so on, and I can scarcely think but that the principle of international comity will lead them to assist us in this small way. After all, it is only copying a few figures and sending them out to us. In that way, as I say, I think we may to certain extent make up for the absence of a bureau of our own. I intend, at all events, to make an experiment in the course of the next few months.

PUBLIC OFFICERS' SALARIES.

As regards the salaries of public officers, I have not the slightest objection myself to lay the report on the table. I have no objection to making public anything that is not in its nature such as it is improper for a Government to give forth. My only reason is that when a specific recommendation is made to officers of very high rank to count upon an increase that very possibly may be disallowed by the Secretary of State. However, if a motion is made on the subject, and there is a strong feeling the report should be laid upon the table, I will at once give way on the point because I have no feeling in the matter except for the officers themselves. So often are these recommendations made, and so often disappointed, that I should be really sorry if officers who are in a struggling position should have their hopes raised when they may not be gratified. However, that is a matter for the hon. members themselves. Of course if the hon. member had been in the Colony he would have been a member of the Committee, and he is quite welcome to see the report, and if after seeing it he thinks it ought to be published and if he carries public opinion with him—public opinion as expressed in this Council—I shall be very happy to lay it on the table. As to houses for officials, while there are some reasons in favour of such a principle I think the general experience of all colonies is very much against it. If the hon. member had my experience on this subject he would say, anything rather than that. The result of giving houses to public officials generally is to enormously add to public expense. Experience shows that houses that do extremely well for people when they pay for them themselves are found fault with in every point when found for them. The repairs required are enormously large, and the amount of destruction enormously large. The system has been tried in many colonies and, as far as I know, has been nearly always abandoned when there was an opportunity of doing so. Moreover, the present moment is a very inconvenient time, because we have now on hand so many public works which we ought to do, which we want to do, and which we are not in a position to do. It may be a question whether certain officers who are particularly pinched might not in spite of the expense I have mentioned—because it is possible that a consideration in their case overrides the objection founded on experience—be given house accommodation. Still, I think with the many things that do not ought to be done it is rather an inconvenient time to propose the point.

THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

While on this point I may as well jump, though it does not follow immediately, to the question of Public Works, because it is somewhat connected with the question to which the hon. member alludes. Notable as the matter is, myself as the hon. member has taken place in many of the public works, I cannot help pointing into some of the causes, but I have pretty well indicated them in this Council, and there is no use in lamenting about the past. But I made a resolution that as soon as we obtained a new Surveyor-General, the whole system must be changed and an entirely different one adopted for the purpose of pressing forward the public works that were so seriously required with some more of urgency and somewhat more of certainty than has been the case in the past. Consequently, as soon as Mr. Brown had time to look at him I gave him carte blanche to say what staff was required to do this list of public works within a reasonable time, say a year or a year and a half, and what staff is required for carrying on the works of the colony such as we are likely to have during the next few years. Of course, he was somewhat delayed in that by the storm; still, in about five weeks after his arrival he reported. He found a great many things seriously wanted and without which the Department could not be carried on satisfactorily. If my recollection serves me right, in August last a requisition was sent to the Secretary of State for a very considerable increase of the Public Works staff. Until we receive the answer to that requisition, I believe that the Surveyor-General and those very few who are assisting him are doing all that is possible, but until we get more men it is impossible to go faster than we are doing. We are seriously undermanned. I have informed the Secretary of State of this, and I only hope we may get some substantial relief in the course of a few months. We cannot get such men here. Apparently we have been underpaying our public servants. It seems to me we have been getting them for the last few years in the Public Works department for the purpose of supplying private firms. One after the other leaves us, and now I hear that another, on leave of absence, has also left us. I only hope my representations to the Secretary of State will be successful. I have not heard, yet, but the coming out of Mr. Chadwick and the assistance he will require for his work brought the want to such a pitch that I am going again for the third fourth time to press the Secretary of State by telegram to comply with the requisition made several months ago. I am doing my best to get the officers to carry out this list of public works, nearly all of which are very much required and some of them very bitterly required. If we get the staff I have every confidence in the Surveyor-General to believe that the works will be carried out within a reasonable time, but without the increased staff I can give very little hope of any diminution of the protracted delays that have prevailed in the past.

THE REDUCTION OF TAXATION.

As to the reduction of taxation, and I have thought over that subject for some time, and I would have been glad to have felt justified in providing for this year, but many considerations have been before me which point to the imprudence of making a reduction just now. In the first place, we have got the unanimous recommendation that the salaries of officials should be increased, which will cost a very considerable sum. In the next place we have this exceedingly indefinite demand, which has never been formulated, with regard to the troops. Then we have a large amount of public works. If my suggestion had been adopted for raising a loan, it is quite clear that with our large excess of revenue over expenditure, it would not be difficult to reduce considerably the taxation of the Colony; but for some reason or other the Government have not done so. But it occurred to me, we might possibly remedy the matter to a certain extent by a circular letter to the Governments of the various countries with which we trade asking them to return to us from their statistics the amount of their imports and exports from and to this Colony. I think that that way may tolerably well make up for the absence of the bureau of our own. Of course a great deal depends upon the extent to which other countries fall in with it, but this Colony constantly being asked to do things for other countries—we are constantly being asked by Germany, and by other countries, for papers, statistics, and so on, and I can scarcely think

THE CROWN AGENTS.

As to the statistics, I share the hon. member's regret that we have no statistics, and the more I think of it the more I find it difficult to understand the validity of the objections against it. However, as you know, after the collection of statistics had been recommended by the Chamber of Commerce, the pressure on the official members seemed so great that there seemed to be almost unanimity against it on their part in this Council. As I said then, I hope time may alter the hon. members' opinions. Every day I see ways in which the absence of statistics prejudice the Colony, not because we want to have our grandeur or ingenuitance shown, but because such statistics would draw attention to points that may be weak and enable them to be strengthened, and not only that, but for many other reasons which it is impossible to give at the moment, but which are the result of the absence of statistics. However, I may say, in my mind a scheme which may assist public opinion changes somewhat. The matter is not of that importance that it is desirable to force public opinion; I hope it may change of itself. them to get the very best of goods at the very lowest price. That is at all events what is contended for their behalf. Of course hon. members may have reason to suppose the contrary, still I have no doubt that in a great many cases their large experience of work and of firms must be exceedingly valuable in getting good work at a cheap price. Whether the large business they do is always done in the best of ways is a matter I cannot say anything about. I only know it is the principle contended for on their behalf. But as I said before, if the hon. member's feeling is shared largely by others I am in duty bound to forward their recommendation to the Secretary of State. I do not think there is any point I have not touched upon; if there is I shall be happy to afford the hon. member or others who desire it such information as is in my power.

The Secretary-General was about to say just now, sir, that the work in connection with this light has been very much underestimated, and that it is hardly possible for me to give any time as to the date when it will be completed. I may say that after making careful enquiries it was concluded that the Gap Rock was the only place for the light-house. From my own experience and that of others who have carried out works of this nature, I have come to the conclusion that it would be very rash on my part to name any time for the completion of the light. The history of all similar works shows that no class of work can be imagined where the difficulties are greater or where it is so impossible to form and estimate of anything like the time required for completion, but I may say now that every preparation for completion has been made. The contract is entered into, the material is prepared, we have secured a steamer which I believe will turn out to be useful for a tender in the service of the light-house, and the work shall be, so far as I am concerned, pushed on as rapidly as it possibly can, but as to fixing any possible time for completion, I think it more prudent to admit at once, that this is one of those matters in which the most experienced would hesitate to return any definite answer.

The Acting Colonial Secretary—The senior unofficial member has asked a question about the forts. The second instalment of £60,000 was voted by the Council and a rider was added that it was on the distinct understanding that the colony was not to be asked for any more. That vote was received by the Imperial Government without any remark. We cannot call it a guarantee. Although the colony has expressed its opinion nothing has been said on the other side. The £30,000 asked for this year has not been spent, but as we have not nearly spent the £120,000 originally voted it is not strictly a re-vote, but simply that £30,000 more is voted out of that sum.

His Excellency—Do I understand that when this sum of £30,000 is expended the whole of the £120,000 will not have been spent?

The Acting Colonial Secretary—Oh no, sir. His Excellency—I understand the question to be whether this £30,000 is a fresh vote or is it the remaining unspent portion of the £120,000.

The Acting Colonial Secretary—I must apologise for not being very well posted in the details. I have been absent on this point, and since my return I have been nearly the whole time on my feet. I am now informed that this £30,000 does not nearly exhaust the £120,000. With regard to the question of audit, I should like to say a word. There is no objection to be raised to Imperial audit by any reasonable man. In any department every conscientious officer does not care two straws who audits the accounts, inasmuch as he has done his best to make things plain. I merely say that while Imperial audit is better than local audit it is not so much better as to justify the heavy expenditure it entails. While on this point, I may say that any successful audit must be done on the spot, and any Imperial audit carried out at home must be a mistake. Let me give one instance of what I mean. When Sir William Marsh arrived here he brought in a system of audit reform. The Post Office and Stamp Revenue Office being a department through which a large number of accounts pass, he sent down a number of questions to be answered and reports to be made with regard to different items. Sheet after sheet of foolscap came, and at last, instead of answering them, I wrote a letter asking him to come and spend a morning in the office. He came down and spent some three or four hours there and went into every item of collection, and he said that he learnt more from that than he ever could have done on paper. Arrangements which appeared to be absolutely monstrous when described on paper he found to be capable of very little alteration or to refer to sums so trivial that it was not worth while to go into more detail, and things that I had thought were done in the most convenient way were not so safe as they might be and we therefore put them on possibly a more troublesome, but certainly a more satisfactory, basis. Now, at this could not have been discovered had he not gone there, and say that no audit can be conducted ten thousand miles from the colony can be really satisfactory, because it is simply done on paper and it is impossible for a man with paper answers and paper explanations, who does not see what is really going on, to obtain any idea of the real circumstances of the case. If no other hon. member has any observations to make I have now to move that this Bill be referred to the Finance Committee.

The Acting Colonial Treasurer seconded. Bill referred to the Finance Committee.

THE POLICE FORCE CONSOLIDATION BILL (AMENDMENT)

His Excellency—The Police Force Consolidation Amendment Ordinance was drawn up on the authority of the late Mr. Stewart while he was administering the Government. I saw it only in print when it was put on the Council table the other day. I was a little doubtful about it and as soon as it was convenient I referred it to the Captain Superintendent of Police and his opinion is that there are certain circumstances which render it very doubtful whether that Ordinance can be brought in. I have not had an opportunity of discussing the matter with him yet. I intend to do so, and in the meantime we shall not go on with the Ordinance. The Council then adjourned.

Meeting of the Finance Committee was then held, the Acting Colonial Secretary presiding. The "Notes accompanying the Estimates of Expenditure for 1890" were laid on the table. The Chairman asked if the members were prepared to go on with the Estimates to-day.

Mr. Ryrie said he had always taken the Notes to assist him in considering the Estimates before they went into committee upon them. As they had not been read before he thought it would be well to postpone the Committee to a later day.

It was then decided the Committee should meet on Monday at three o'clock.

Mr. Ryrie said it had not been made quite clear whether the Council had power to vote sums in excess of the Civil List.

Captain Deane—Decidedly we have.

The Chairman said the Council had year by year voted all sorts of sums in excess of the Civil List. There was hardly an officer who did not get more than was set down in that list. Mr. Ryrie—But he gets that under the "Estimates."

The Chairman said that was so, and that was what would have to be done in the case of the audit vote this year. They would have to put down the amount fixed by the Civil List and so much more as was necessary in Establishments. A coach and four had been driven through the Civil List Ordinance so often that he thought it was mischievous. He went on to explain, with respect to the vote for defences in next year's estimates, that from inquiries he had just made he found that of the £1,000 originally voted not much was left, he could not say how much, because they did not know how much the Crown Agents had spent at home but in all probability there would not be more than £20,000 or so left after the £30,000 to be voted for next year.

Mr. MacEwen asked the Chairman if he was sure he was correct in the statement he had just made. He was under the impression General Cameron had told him that he had spent $112,000 out of the $120,000. He thought it was a matter that should be carefully looked into.

The Chairman said he had not had time to look into the figures, but he would do so before the next meeting.

The Supplementary Estimates for 1888 were then formally passed, all the items having been approved separately at the times they were introduced.

The Committee then adjourned.

 at death if previous.*

* AFTER being three years in force, each year's payment of premium secures a proportionate part of Sum Assured as explained in Prospectus. For instance, after five years a man Assured under plan b would be entitled to a £100 Paid-up Policy for 5/20ths of Sum Assured,
 viz. £250, should he wish to discontinue future payments.
 * The same provisions if commenced at age 40
 n.b. would cost respectively: (a) £3.150, (b)
 £1.150, (c) £1.244, (d) £27.08 per quarter.
 * It is an advantage to effect Provisions of this nature early in life, by delay the rate of subscription increases. Death may occur before the Provision is effected, or Health may fall and render the life ineligible for Assurance.
